St German's Road

This considered two-bedroom apartment with access to a south-facing garden sits in a peaceful corner of Honor Oak in south London. Reaching over 720 sq ft internally, the ground-floor spaces have been immaculately renovated using a palette of earthy greens, natural wood and white that chime with the outside space.

St German's Road is quietly positioned between Honour Oak and Forest Hill, in an area of London loved for its parks and green spaces. Set back from the road, this apartment occupies the ground floor of a mid-century building. There is allocated off-street parking and use of an external storage unit.

Inside, the bright living spaces have been completely opened-up to create a large and flexible room. The kitchen is contained within one half of the space, with solid-wood worktops and white cabinetry arranged beneath the window. There is also a large pantry, and white-washed engineeredwood floors run underfoot.
