The Architect

Founded by Theo Dales and Jonathon and Zoe Little, KOTO specialises in architect-designed modular housing and cabins – a modern and sustainable alternative to conventional housing in the UK, Europe, and the USA. Combining subtle luxury with sustainability, every KOTO home has been beautifully crafted to the highest standards and with the utmost respect for the environment.

Environmental Performance

Energy efficiency is integral to design and production, with each cabin built almost entirely from sustainably sourced timbers and with excellent levels of insulation. Thoughtfully designed to blend into the landscape, the external cladding is of blackened British larch, a naturally durable softwood. Carbon dioxide is captured in the fabric of the building and actively removed from the atmosphere.

Each cabin has been created specifically for this site, where picture windows give views to the north and limit solar gain from the sun to the south. The airtightness, glazing, heat and power systems are designed to reduce incoming noise and make efficient use of day-to-day energy, while hot water requirements are served by a FlexTherm thermal battery. More information about the cabins' environmental performance is available upon request.

The Tour

Designed exclusively for The Point, positioning and site planning for each of the cabins has been carefully considered, maximising the excellent vistas across the surrounding coast and countryside landscape while ensuring optimal privacy. Private parking areas lie adjacent to each site with glass doors forming the entrance, leading through to the beautifully light open-plan living spaces.

The Point

Following one of two layouts – ‘Rumps’ or ‘Rock’ – each cabin has three double bedrooms and two bathrooms, with internal living areas of approximately 1,100 sq ft spanning a single storey. Drawing inspiration from KOTO’s passion for Scandinavian simplicity and Japanese design, distinct architectural profiles are punctuated with geometric fenestration, with the pitch of the rooflines defining the dynamic volume of each interconnected living space. Set in natural contrast to the bold black exterior, soft, earthy tones create a calm, quiet energy throughout the interior spaces, with sleeping areas subtly defined by a soft variation in the wall colour. A thoughtful selection of Scandinavian furniture by Bolia has been carefully curated by Koto Living to provide a pared-back material and textile palette, creating a pleasing aesthetic continuity throughout.

The existing cabins have varying finishes and fittings, dependent on specification and upgrades. Pale timber flooring runs underfoot, and huge picture windows are strategically placed to invite an exceptional quality of natural light and plenty of warmth through the course of the day, enjoyed from the deep window seats. Modern kitchen areas are defined by clean lines of bespoke cabinetry, neatly housing appliances, with a separate utility space positioned adjacent to the kitchen. Living areas are arranged in a social, versatile layout, with expanses of glazing visually connecting the interior and exterior spaces. The three bedrooms are generous in proportion and rational in layout, with an excellent provision of built-in storage areas. The main bedroom has an en suite bathroom in addition to the central bathroom, where deep skylights invite the sun and moonlight to pour through.

Outdoor Space

Private decked terraces and courtyards form the perimeter of each cabin. Outdoor spaces have been orientated to follow the course of sunlight through day into evening, with plenty of space outside to enjoy a morning coffee, evening sundowner, or summer supper. Wood-fired hot tubs for the private decked terraces can also be ordered as part of upgrade packages.

Set in around four acres of sympathetically landscaped grassland designed by Cornwall-based Chelsea gold winner Darren Hawkes, the overall setting has been exceptionally well-considered. Carefully designed to encourage the natural biodiversity of the site, the planting scheme blends harmoniously with the local vernacular, with 400 metres of traditional stone walling defining a calm journey of walkways through Cornish wildflowers, grasses, and a plethora of indigenous plants, trees and shrubs. The tops of the stone walls will be seeded with a grass and wildflower mix creating an informal colourful backdrop to views from the large cabin windows. The boundary hedgerows will be left undisturbed and grounds will be fully maintained by the team at The Point.
